

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to an image-recorded medium in which on a surface of a transparent substrate, a plurality of toner layers are electrophotographically laminated and fixed, and thereby a fixed image is formed, wherein among melting temperatures of the toners constituting the respective layers of the plurality of toner layers, a melting temperature of a toner that constitutes at least an outermost toner layer is the highest.